BACK TO THE SOIL.

By Paul Terry

Sunrise and the early bird is out to catch the worm but the early worm catches the bird in this case. The barnyard animals do setting-up exercises and old Al comes out of the house yawning. A pig runs off with the old man and dumps him into the water trough.

Disgusted with the farm, Al starts off, after some difficulty, in his car. A dog "bums" a ride and calls his companions to join him. Al gets out of his car pushes it with the mob into a mud hole.

Glad to be rid of more annoyance Al takes a ride in a plane. When the dog pilot's ears slap him in the nose, the old farmer takes a sock at the aviator. The pup resents this, and doing a loop, sends Al into the same mud hole, into which Al had sent the dogs.
